A Decade of Impact—Growing Stronger Through Healing

"The people in my life knew what I was like before treatment, so they all started asking me what happened when I came back home from the Emory Healthcare Veterans Program. They noticed the difference in my life."- Jared Callaway, Army veteran and Emory Healthcare Veterans Program graduate

Army Veteran Found Healing and Now Encourages Others to do the Same

After years in the U.S. Army, Jared came home carrying the invisible wounds of post-traumatic stress. He tried traditional mental health care programs, but nothing seemed to help. "My previous therapy was more of a vent session… sometimes we'd just talk about baseball," he says.

At EHVP, things were different. "Prolonged exposure was scary, and it took a few days for me to buy into it, but that's what helped," Jared recalls. "The nurse helped me understand my medications, and the family sessions, though my wife and I were skeptical, improved our relationship in ways we didn't expect."

Since graduating from the two-week accelerated treatment program, Jared has taken on a new mission: reaching fellow veterans who need care. "I know what it's like to sit with a gun in my lap every night contemplating suicide. Now I walk veterans through the application process [for Emory's] program. One veteran I referred was accepted into the program and has sent me photos of his kids, saying, 'This is all because of you.'"
