Announcing the Warrior Care Network® Teammate of the Year

For Jessica, joining the Emory Healthcare Veterans Program (EHVP) was about more than a job. With deep respect for those who have served, she was drawn to EHVP's mission of helping veterans and service members heal from their invisible wounds and live the life they envision.

As a patient care coordinator, Jessica helps keep everything running smoothly behind the scenes. There are a lot of moving parts to the accelerated treatment program, and she plays a key role in creating the structure and consistency that allow participants to stay focused on their care.

Outside of work, Jessica enjoys spending time with family and friends and making time to recharge so she can come back each day focused and positive. And a fun fact her teammates might not know is that she is also a musician and a singer, which fits her energetic personality.

"Jessica exemplifies what it means to serve with purpose. Her dedication, teamwork, and commitment to our mission are a big part of why she was named Warrior Care Network Teammate of the Year," said Jim Ludlam, Director of Projects.

Congratulations, Jessica!

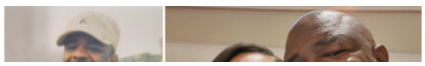

March is Social Work Appreciation Month

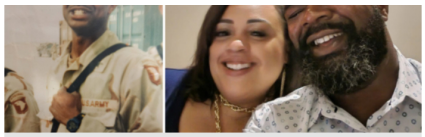

As we recognize social workers far and wide this month, we want to give a special round of applause to our incredible social work team.

Our six social workers are the heart and soul of EHVP. They are a highly specialized group with a deep understanding of military culture. Each team member holds the highest level of licensure: Licensed Clinical Social Worker (LCSW). They are passionate about healing invisible wounds and transforming the lives of our veterans and service members. The Emory Healthcare Veterans Program wouldn't be the success it is without them.

Did you know that all participants in our accelerated treatment program have a dedicated social worker on their care team? Watch the video below to learn more.

Finding purpose again: one veteran's journey from survival to living fully

"I was having five or six nightmares a week. I was tired. And I was tired of being tired," Army veteran Daniel recalls. "I didn't realize how much contact I'd lose with society after retiring. Everyone else was working, and I was just sitting there. I completely lost my routine."

At 48, Daniel found himself spending long hours alone in his "man cave," disconnected from the world. "I'd wake up, maybe go to the gym, maybe not, but I'd always end up in the man cave, just sitting in isolation, wallowing."

For years after leaving the Army, Daniel struggled with feeling isolated and overwhelmed as a result of the trauma he endured. A brain injury, compounded by years of high-risk combat operations and a series of personal losses, had left him disconnected from his purpose and the people he loved.

When Daniel discovered the Emory Healthcare Veterans Program, he knew it was time to turn his life around. During the two-week accelerated treatment program, he confronted painful memories, learned to manage his symptoms, and rebuilt the structure his life had been missing.

Today, Daniel lives with intention. He starts each morning with gratitude, shares his journey to help others, and spends meaningful time with his family. "I'm just the dude who's lived a lot of life and is grateful to be alive," he says.

His story is a powerful reminder that healing is possible and that independence can be reclaimed through compassionate, evidence-based care. Click the button below to read Daniel's full story.
